

This architectural floor plan illustrates the layout of the first floor of the 'Pavilion of the Future'. The building is elongated and features a series of rooms along its length, with a more complex arrangement of rooms and a central staircase on the right side. The rooms are color-coded: pink for main exhibition spaces, cyan for smaller rooms or offices, green for specialized areas, and yellow for corridors or service spaces. Staircases are indicated by red hatched areas. The plan also shows various doors, windows, and structural elements like walls and columns.
